Property Discussion

This offering comprises a portfolio of three long-term all-age RV Parks totaling 500+/- sites in the Southwest Region. The portfolio benefits from a robust economic environment underpinned by the sustained expansion and a diverse set of demand drivers. The economy has long been anchored by the resource industry and strengthened by tourism, with millions visiting the National Park each year alongside a steady influx of supporting workers and construction activity. This mix has established the Southwest region as a regional employment hub with a resilient, multi-faceted economic base, fueling consistent demand for long-term housing and extended-stay lodging. Each community in the portfolio is strategically positioned to capture this steady pipeline of residents and travelers in a market defined by housing scarcity and population growth.

The portfolio provides investors with an immediate scaled footprint in the long-term RV housing sector, combining 500+/- sites across three historically stabilized, high-occupancy parks with strong in-place cash flow and operational efficiency. Local housing shortages have kept park occupancies near full, with sustained waiting lists. Each property is professionally owner-managed and well-maintained, ensuring continuity of income and minimizing turnover. The combination of stable operations, institutional-grade assets, and attractive market fundamentals creates a durable investment profile that aligns with both income-oriented and growth-minded strategies.

Meaningful upside remains through incremental rent growth, continued lease-up of remaining sites, and portfolio-level operational efficiencies. The Southwest region economy continues to expand and local rental demand outpaces supply, new ownership can drive NOI growth while preserving affordability relative to traditional housing. The scale and geographic concentration of this long-term three park portfolio also unlock management synergies uncommon at this price point. In an asset class recognized for its recession-resilient performance, this offering represents a rare opportunity for institutional or large regional operators to secure a significant foothold in one of the Southwest's most productive and economically vital markets.
